CREATE YOUR WORK IN AN INSPIRING PLACE: ALL ABOUT ARTIST RESIDENCIES

Speaker: Liz Roth

Length: 1 to 3 hours

Artist Residencies are opportunities for artists to create work in a different environment from two weeks to one year. They range from sophisticated multimedia labs to shacks in national parks to international collaborative opportunities. They exist all around the United States and internationally, and await your application. Many of them are free, and all are invigorating. Liz Roth has been awarded six residencies both in the United States and Japan, and will explain what residencies are, how to find them, and how to create a winning application for them.

About the Speaker:

Liz Roth is an award-winning, nationally and internationally exhibited artist. She has been an artist in residence at the Wrangell Mountain Center (in Alaska), Jentel Artist Foundation (in Wyoming), the Awagami Paper Factory (in Japan), the Kamiyama (Japan) Artists in Residence program, and the Vermont Studio Center. In Summer 2011, she will be an artist in residence at the Grand Canyon National Park. She has received numerous prestigious painting grants including the Wisconsin Arts Board Individual Artist Fellowship, the national Ludwig Vogelstein Foundation grant for painting, Oklahoma Visual Artist's Coalition Grant 365 and OVAC's Creative Projects Grant. Her works have been acquired by many national and international collections, including the Walker Museum of Art, the Museu del Joguet in Spain, the Museum of Awa Japanese Paper, and the KAIR Contemporary Art Collection. Liz Roth is an Assistant Professor of Painting and Drawing at Oklahoma State University.
